INTERVIEW WITH DEAN NOWACK

The Peter J. Tobin College of Business is proud to provide students an education that is entrepreneurial, experiential, and global. We have remained committed to our vision to be recognized as a distinct leader in business education, providing a transformative learning experience based on Vincentian ideals, as we continue to inspire our students to achieve their professional goals in a diverse and dynamic environment.

Over the past seven years, we have made many strides in improving the metrics of student success for both our undergraduate and graduate students. In addition, we have developed and launched innovative curricular and cocurricular programs, improved our internship and job placement rate, and raised important resources for our students and faculty. As our University continues to manage and mitigate external risks and challenges, we applaud the resiliency of our students, faculty, administrators, and staff. The dedication and devotion of our faculty to scholarship and teaching in a variety of modalities has exceeded expectations.

Our experiential learning opportunities have thrived during the past seven years, as evidenced by growth in our:

- Applied Finance Institute (AFI)
- Executive in Residence Program (EIRP)
- James and Eileen Christmas Business Plan Competition
- Junior Faculty Mentoring Program (JUMP)
- Student Managed Investment Fund (SMIF)
- Thomas J. Cox, Jr. Honors Program
- Tobin CEO Seminar Series
- Tobin Graduate Intensive Foundation (TGIF)
- Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) Program.

It has been my honor to serve as Dean of The Peter J. Tobin College of Business for the past seven years and we are proud of the positive metrics in the placement and performance of our students and the professorships endowed by our dedicated alumni.

I am grateful to all our generous and devoted alumni who have supported Tobin College over the past seven years and look forward to learning of Tobin's continued growth in the years to come.

M.S. Business Analytics
M.S. Global Management and Entrepreneurship
M.S. Marketing Intelligence
M.S. Risk and Financial Advisory

The Thomas J. Cox, Jr. Honors Program was launched and funded in Fall 2019 with 35 first-year students. Approximately 100 new Honors students have enrolled at Tobin each year since 2020. Next year, more than 400 total Cox Honors students will study business across all majors at Tobin.

Dean Sharpe will be remembered for her dynamic leadership at The Peter J. Tobin College of Business and for her success in enhancing its recognition for providing a quality business education.

– John P. “Jack” Clarke, Esq. ‘55CBA, ‘57L Chair, Department of Business Law

Dean Sharpe's leadership was the catalyst for the significant and consistent advancement of program offerings, outcomes, and recognition for The Peter J. Tobin College of Business, which can be clearly seen through its rise in several of the most trusted business school rankings.

– Timothy L. Keiningham, Ph.D., J. Donald Kennedy Endowed Chair in E-Commerce and Professor of Marketing

Dean Sharpe has been transformative, as she has campaigned to have Tobin College recognized as one of the nation's top business schools. Most importantly, she fostered a culture focused on excellence, service, and impact. Dean Sharpe is a world-class educational leader and innovator.

– Christopher P. Long, Ph.D., Paul Naughton Professor of Management and Executive Director, Executive-in-Residence Program

When Dean Sharpe arrived at St. John's, Tobin's undergraduate program was unranked; today, it is a top-50 program. Under her leadership, the M.S. in Global Management and Entrepreneurship was instituted, the Executive-in-Residence Program (EIRP) was expanded and enhanced, and the Tobin First-Year Experience course was created.

– John Angelidis, Ph.D., Chair, Department of Management, Entrepreneurship, Consulting, and Operations

RISE IN UNDERGRADUATE BUSINESS RANKINGS

Through her efforts, Dean Sharpe has had a significant impact on our faculty research and administrative engagement, and the enhancement of the reputation of our College. In my view, she has accomplished so much more than others in the past. I look forward to her continued voice as a valued member of our faculty.

– Gerald P. Cusack, Ph.D., Associate Professor of Management, Entrepreneurship, Consulting and Operations

STUDENT SUCCESS

Juan Arrieta

As a senior Tobin student with a near-perfect grade point average of 3.96, Juan Arrieta '23TCB chaired the Tobin Student Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion Task Force, which was charged with developing and implementing suggestions to enhance the inclusive environment from both a curricular and cocurricular perspective for all Tobin students. His other activities included the GenUnion (finance mentoring program), Financial Management Association (FMA), St. John's Student Ambassador Program, and Project AIM (mentoring program). Finally, Juan has also served as an Applied Finance Institute Fellow, a member of the Economics and Finance Society, and a Career Peer. The Colombia native interned as a corporate bank analyst at Deutsche Bank, and plans to return there to work full time after graduation.

Katerina Yiasoumi

Katerina Yiasoumi '22TCB, '23MS of Astoria, N.Y., is a graduate student in the M.S. Business Analytics program with a 4.0 grade point average. She received the Outstanding Paper Award in 2022 at the St. John's Research Symposium for "An Econometric Model of US Government Sector Yield Curve Levels and Dynamics," which is based on her masters thesis. She has also presented her work at the Global Business Research Symposium in Rome, Italy, the European Decision Sciences Conference in Dublin, Ireland, and the Decision Sciences Institute Conference in Houston, TX. A UBS Arena and New York Islanders Graduate Student Scholar, Katerina was a data and analytics intern at the insurance and reinsurance firm Vantage Services LLC in her last semester, applying her affinity for acquiring and analyzing data.

TOBIN CELEBRATES STUDENT-ATHLETES

DANIELLE S. PATTERSON '22MPS, '24MBA
WOMEN'S BASKETBALL

The Brooklyn, NY native and graduate of The Mary Louis Academy is working on her M.B.A. in strategic management while maintaining a 3.8 grade point average. Danielle previously earned her M.P.S. in Sport Administration from The Lesley H. and William L. Collins College of Professional Studies. She went to the NCAA Final Four twice with the University of Notre Dame, winning a championship in 2018, and ultimately graduated from Indiana University with a degree in sports broadcasting and communications. As a St. John's graduate student in 2021–22, she played in 30 games, including 14 starts, averaging 23.7 minutes, 8.2 points, and 4.7 rebounds per game. She plans to remain in the sports industry after graduation, either behind the bench or in the front office.

GRACE BERNARDI
WOMEN'S SOCCER

The graduate of Massapequa High School obtained her B.S. in Marketing with a 3.82 grade point average. A Fast-Track student, Grace will start her M.B.A. in Business Analytics in the fall. In her Academic Service-Learning project with buildOn, she raised $2,500 and continues to work with the organization to send volunteers to build schools in Central America. The recipient of a full athletic scholarship, she played in 17 matches, making 15 starts, as a junior in the Fall of 2021, her most recent season.

CAIDEN VLASIMKY
MEN'S LACROSSE

A finance major from Dallas with a 3.9 grade point average, Caiden is a starting midfielder for the Men's Lacrosse team and was named a BIG EAST All-Academic in 2022. An Applied Finance Institute Fellow, he was an investment research intern at Icon Wealth Partners in Houston, TX in the Summer of 2022. Before coming to St. John's, he was an Eagle Scout and coached first-through eighth-grade lacrosse.

JACK SIMON
'22TCB, '23MBA
MEN'S GOLF

By winning the BIG EAST individual golf championship on April 30 at the Riverton Pointe Golf Club in Hardeeville, SC, the Sparta, NJ native became the eighth Red Storm player to win the BIG EAST and the first since 2015. Jack competed in the NCAA Regional Tournament in May and now plans to turn pro after he completes his MBA.

TOBIN STUDENTS WIN BUSINESS PLAN COMPETITION

The annual James and Eileen Christmas Business Plan Competition and Pitch Event was held on April 13, on the St. John's University Queens campus.

This year's top prize of $5,000 went to Louis Balducci '23TCB for NYC Arts Cypher. This arts venue in Staten Island, N.Y. inspires and educates by providing an opportunity for people to express themselves freely in an artistic environment.

The runner-up, with a prize of $2,000, was Stephanie Marroquin '23TCB for Fridge IT, a mobile app that provides the expiration dates for refrigerated food, as well as recipes for foods recognized in the refrigerator. The third-place prize of $1,000 went to Hakeem Clinton '23TCB for the cannabis-infused bakery Half-Baked.

The top Pitch Event winner was Biret Shrestha for Mad Honey Records, a music promotion service for South Asian musicians.

Sponsor James Christmas '70CBA, '10HON, retired Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of KCS Energy, served as the lead executive judge. The other judges were Scott Lempere, Executive Director of St. John's University's Auxiliary and Conference Services; Roger A. Hans, M.B.A., Adjunct Assistant Professor of Management at the Tobin College of Business; and Alexander Berman, Ph.D., Assistant Professor of Management at the Tobin College of Business. Albert Bateh '16TCB, Chief Executive Officer of EZ-Net Hair Care, was the keynote speaker and the other executive judge.

Once again, William D. Reisel, Ph.D., Professor of Management in the Department of Consulting and Operations, served as director of the competition.

ST. JOHN'S STUDENTS CONTINUE TRADITION OF
TAX-PREPARATION SERVICE

Students in The Peter J. Tobin College of Business again participated in the Internal Revenue Service's Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) program, which offers free tax preparation to low-income, disabled, and limited English-speaking taxpayers. Students helped taxpayers to file their returns.

Under the direction of Professor of Accountancy Nina T. Dorata, C.P.A., Ph.D., St. John's volunteer filers have returned more than $20 million to needy taxpayers over nearly two decades. Taxpayers must make $60,000 or less to qualify. Many VITA clients rely on the refundable Earned Income Tax Credit, a tax break for low- and moderate-income families, to fund living expenses.

The University partnered with the Food Bank for New York City in 2009, expanding the program's reach beyond the Queens, NY campus. All of the University's 40-plus volunteers, mostly undergraduate accounting students, must pass an IRS certification test and undergo tax-preparation training. Students can process returns in person or virtually through the VITA Lab, which has been in existence since 2014.

Almost 2,000 taxpayers reached out to St. John's volunteers before the filing season ended on April 18.

TOBIN PROMOTES SCHOLARS

, earned promotion this year to the rank of Full Professor for his research in international management, human resources management, leadership ethics, and the role informality plays in managing globally. Exploring informal structures, and the drivers and ideals of informal networking, his work helps global managers to connect and to improve their networking capabilities in a responsible way. Further, it enhances the theoretical and practical understanding of how informality and informal networking affects and influences the practice of managing abroad.

Dr. Horak worked for several years in the East Asian automotive industry, managing operations for the Robert Bosch Group in Tokyo, Seoul, and Stuttgart. Before joining Tobin, he was a post-doctoral fellow and research associate funded by the German Research Foundation (DFG) at the Institute of East Asian Studies (IN-EAST) and the Mercator School of Management at Duisburg-Essen University in Germany. He was awarded a doctorate from Duisburg-Essen University for his research on the influence of culture on managerial decision-making behavior. Professor Horak has held numerous research and teaching-related visiting positions at institutions in Korea, Japan and Thailand, Korea.

, earned tenure and promotion this year to the rank of Associate Professor. Her research investigates how individuals, communities, and private/public institutions manage disaster risks, such as earthquakes or extreme weather events, with an emphasis on the role of insurance in disaster risk financing.

With research interests in catastrophe risk management, insurance economics, spatial economics, environmental risk, risk awareness, and predictive modeling, Dr. Lin teaches a wide array of courses, including graduate courses in risk management, modern actuarial statistics, and mathematical statistics and undergraduate courses in applied statistics and principals of risk and insurance. Professor Lin has published in top-tier journals, such as the Journal of Risk and Uncertainty, the Journal of Risk and Insurance, and Insurance: Mathematics and Economics.

earned promotion this year to the rank of Full Professor. His primary research examines how leaders can and do create contexts within which individuals can achieve high levels of performance on multiple instrumental dimensions. His most significant discoveries involve how leaders systematically integrate their efforts to apply controls with the efforts they take to demonstrate their trustworthiness and promote fairness, as well as the performance and relational outcomes these combinations of activities produce. His research, which has been published in many of the field's top journals, has generated new insights on the dynamics of leadership, performance management systems, trust, and fairness within both traditional organizations and new organizational forms.

A popular teacher, who was who was on the 2021 Poets&Quants list of "Top 50 Undergraduate Business School Professors," Dr. Long has taught courses in Organizational Behavior, Leadership, Organization Design, Organizational Change, and Strategic Management. He also directs the College's Executive-in-Residence Program (EIRP), in which select Tobin students provide consulting for area firms in the areas of strategy, finance, marketing, and management.

, earned promotion this year to the rank of Full Professor. Dr. Mohr has served as Chair of the Marketing Department since 2017. In that time, the department has added numerous new courses, four new marketing minors, and a new M.S. in Marketing Intelligence. She also created the Marketing Workshop Series, in collaboration with the Office of Career Services, which has facilitated the exposure to marketing by bringing many panelists from the marketing industry to campus.

Dr. Mohr is an accomplished documentary filmmaker and her state-of-the-art research investigates recent trends in academia, including sustainability, videography, social media, movies, and fashion. Her films have significant marketing implications for wide audiences, and have earned numerous honors and awards at international conferences. Her inaugural film, #SustainUp, won many accolades upon its release in 2018, including an Impact DOCS Award of Recognition and a nomination for the Women Film Critics Circle Award, among others.

, earned tenure and promotion this year to the rank of Associate Professor. His scholarship investigates experimental consumer behavior and explores the cognitive and situational determinants of consumer judgments and decision-making. His work in applied cognitive psychology advances theory and practice by exploring the impact of salient motives, the role of cognitive resources, and the effect of perception and the construal of actions and objects on consumer behavior. Dr. Rubin's research has been published in academic journals such as the Journal of Consumer Psychology, as well as mainstream outlets such as Forbes.com, BBC.com, ScienceDaily.com, Plate, and MedicalXpress.com.

Believing that students should learn through active participation and discussion, Dr. Rubin ensures that his students think critically by applying fundamental concepts of marketing in less structured situations. He expects his students to complete a semester-long authentic assessment that allows them to gain real-world, hands-on experience performing marketing activities for real clients. He exposes his students to up-to-date research and burgeoning areas within the field, integrating essential skills into his courses, and introducing students to executives from leading companies.

, worked as an auditor for two of the Big Four accounting and auditing forms for more than a decade before returning to school. She earned her doctorate from the University of Scranton in 2022 with a dissertation on “Accounting Students Academic Dishonesty – What Accounting Students Believe.”

As an Assistant Adjunct Professor at York College/CUNY, she taught courses in intermediate accounting and auditing, as well as some continuing education courses.

has more than 26 years of industry experience. He was a partner at Kekst CNC until June 2019, when he left to launch his entrepreneurial venture and focus on his doctoral degree, which he earned in 2021 from the Jack Welch College of Business & Technology at Sacred Heart University.

In his courses, Dr. Herley focuses on practical applications and experiential learning. His research leverages regime-switching models and machine-learning techniques to improve time-series econometric forecasts. Dr. Herley’s ongoing research focuses on examining the relationship between financial and economic variables at different levels of market risk using self-exciting threshold autoregressive and Markov-switching models.

, focuses on the management of financial risks that life insurers face from offering equity-linked investment products, such as variable annuities, and on whether the life insurers’ own investments prioritize sustainability. Her research adds to our understanding of the systematic risk exposure of US life insurers resulting from long-term financial guarantees and provides insights on insurers’ participation and contribution to environmental, social, and governance sustainability in the business community and society as a whole. Dr. Li is also interested in the topics of retirement savings products, investment management, insurance economics, and corporate social responsibility.

As a doctoral candidate at the Fox School of Business at Temple University, Dr. Li taught or cotaught courses in Actuarial Corporate Finance, Actuarial Economics, Long-Term Actuarial Modeling, Short-Term Actuarial Modeling, Seminar in Risk Theory, Advanced Theory of Interest, and Theory of Interest. She is currently pursuing Associate of the Society of Actuaries and Fellow of the Society of Actuaries designations.

, is an entrepreneur and strategic executive whose business career was centered in management and client-facing roles in the media and technology industries. Possessing almost two decades of media, technology, and digital industry experience driving business growth, expansion, and competitive excellence via strategic planning and allocation of resources, he teaches courses in Leadership, Ecommerce, Managerial Strategy and Policy, International Business, Organizational Behavior, and Operations and Management Information Systems. He has also taught at Northeastern University.

His extensive and varied business career includes senior management positions in industries including education, media and technology. Working with many different organizations, Professor Weissman has mentored and advised more than 75 companies on issues involving management, strategy, and customer acquisition strategies and tactics.

GLOBAL DESTINATION COURSES

BRUSSELS, BELGIUM

Attending a class in March with Ryall Carroll, Ph.D., Associate Professor, Department of Marketing, at EPHEC University in Brussels, Belgium, Tobin marketing majors met more than 70 international students from all over Europe and around the world, allowing them to work in an international environment and in teams with students from different institutions worldwide. The objective of the week was to develop and present innovative and creative concepts related to Circular Economy to Recycle, a new initiative from the major bicycle retail chain Lucien, specializing in refurbishing and selling used bikes. With the help of experts and visits to companies within the Brussels area, students were able to develop, innovate, and co-create great ideas that could be implemented into a real business.

CORK, IRELAND

A group of 24 Thomas J. Cox, Jr. Honors students traveled in March to Cork, Ireland to learn about international management by visiting firms and area universities. The students, along with Norean R. Sharpe, Dean and Joseph H. and Maria C. Schwartz Distinguished Chair; Niall C. Hegarty, Ed.D., Associate Professor, Department of Management; and Tracey L. Freiberg, Visiting Professor, Economics and Finance, visited manufacturing facilities at firms such as Dell Technologies, met with faculty at the University College Cork (UCC) and Munster Technological University (MTU), and learned about Irish history through cultural visits. The Tobin students and faculty met with the Deputy Lord Mayor of Cork, who gave an overview of the governance and history of Cork.

MADRID, SPAIN

As part of the marketing course Marketing for Hospitality and Tourism and the management course International Management, students traveled to Madrid, Spain, in March with Iris Mohr, Ph.D., Chair and Professor of Marketing, and Leonora Fuxman, Ph.D., Professor of Operations Management, to identify and explore cross-cultural issues and hospitality, leisure, and international trends of significance in the global business environment. The focus of this trip was on the challenges and opportunities in marketing and strategy in the hospitality and leisure international marketplace, as well as on the challenges associated with operational management and strategy of both for-profit and not-for-profit organizations operating in the global environment.

HIGHLIGHTS FROM

THE MAURICE R. GREENBERG SCHOOL OF RISK MANAGEMENT, INSURANCE AND ACTUARIAL SCIENCE (GSRM)

RECORD-BREAKING INSURANCE LEADER OF THE YEAR AWARD DINNER RAISES $4.2 MILLION

The Maurice R. Greenberg School of Risk Management, Insurance and Actuarial Science (GSRM) hosted its 27th annual Insurance Leader of the Year Award Dinner on January 18, raising a total of $4,210,500 to fund student scholarships and support academic program initiatives. The event, held at the New York Marriott Marquis in Manhattan, drew a crowd of nearly 1,600 members of the global insurance industry, senior leadership from the University, students, faculty, business executives, guests, family, and friends.

The historic celebration for the insurance industry and supporters of the University honored Alan D. Schnitzer, Chairman and CEO of The Travelers Companies, Inc., as the 2022 Insurance Leader of the Year.

“My hope is that one day in the future a recipient of the generosity we’ve seen here tonight will be up on this stage being honored,” Mr. Schnitzer said in his acceptance speech. “They’ll be able to talk about their work to bring people together, to confront risks, and to overcome challenges. They’ll be able to say: ‘Someone saw a future for me that I couldn’t fully see for myself.’ What a fitting tribute that would be to our industry, your generosity, and the promise of partnership.”

During his acceptance speech, Mr. Schnitzer surprised the audience by announcing the creation of The Travelers Scholarship for Future Leaders with a pledged gift of $250,000. The scholarship fund provides annual scholarships to GSRM students with financial needs who demonstrate strong leadership potential.

GSRM STUDENTS TRAVEL TO LONDON

Risk management, insurance and actuarial students spent nine days in Munich, Zurich, Paris, and London, meeting executives at leading risk and insurance firms including MunichRe, Swiss Re, AXA/XL, OdysseyRe, Partner Re, Hakluyt & Company, Canopus, Aegis, Iquw, Mosaic Insurance, Kennedy’s CMK Law, and Lloyd’s (Emerging Risks Group and InsureTech Group).

Despite a very robust itinerary, the students were able to sample much of what London has to offer, including a tour of Canterbury Cathedral in Kent.

ZURICH FELLOWS SCHOLARSHIP AIMS TO DEVELOP DIVERSE TALENT IN INSURANCE INDUSTRY

Developing diverse talent is a key goal in creating a brighter future at Zurich and in the insurance industry. That is why Zurich is excited to announce the new Zurich Fellows scholarship, with an application that is open to all Zurich employees and nonemployees in the US and Canada who are pursuing or planning to pursue a career in the insurance industry.

The Zurich Fellows scholarship is designed to advance the development of diverse talent in the insurance industry. In this context, diversity can include individuals who represent different ethnic, cultural, social, race, religious, sexual orientation, and ability backgrounds.

Recipients will be awarded a scholarship of up to $7,000 to support study in master’s degree programs at St. John’s University’s Maurice R. Greenberg School of Risk Management, Insurance and Actuarial Science (GSRM). A global leader in risk and insurance education and training, the GSRM draws candidates from all over the world. All of the degree programs offered by The Peter J. Tobin College of Business, and thus by the GSRM, are fully accredited by the Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business.

The scholarship can be applied to the Master of Business Administration in Risk Management or Enterprise Risk Management, or the Master of Science in Actuarial Science, Enterprise Risk Management, or Risk Management and Risk Analytics.

Students have the option to attend online, in person, or any combination that best suits their needs and interests. Travel to the University’s Queens, NY, campus is not required to pursue the aforementioned master’s degrees. The first of the Zurich Fellows were admitted in September 2022. Zurich’s involvement with St. John’s includes having endowed the James J. Schiro (’67CBA) Chair of Enterprise Risk Management in 2010 to honor the former Chief Executive Officer of Zurich Insurance Group.

Q&A WITH
WILLIAM G. SCHAEFFER '73CBA,
DIRECTOR OF DEVELOPMENT

Can you discuss the most significant gift you have received for the Tobin College of Business?

The most rewarding significant gift that we received came from an alumnus who had been disengaged from the University for a long time. Following some useful research about this individual by the Advancement team, we were able to re-engage the alumnus and introduce him to Dean Sharpe and the Vice President of Advancement, followed by a meeting with Rev. Brian J. Shanley, O.P., President.

This team effort produced a significant seven-figure gift initially, which was followed by a second similar gift. This is an example of senior leadership working together collaboratively to raise a significant amount of money for scholarships for Tobin students.

What are your most memorable times with alumni and donors over the past seven years?

I think that my most memorable times are those spent re-engaging with disaffected alumni and being able to bring them back into the life of the University. Usually, the alumni are amazed and impressed with what the Tobin College has become and what it has accomplished from an academic perspective.

I also have fond memories of putting together alumni dinners so the base can meet and hear the vision of Dean Sharpe. These small dinners, which we have held often over the past seven years, have been both popular and productive in terms of engaging and educating alumni.

Of course, working with the Tobin Board of Advisors will remain memorable. They are a group of successful, qualified, and dedicated professionals who work hard for the betterment of the College.

You and Dean Sharpe have been a successful fundraising team for Tobin. What do you attribute this to?

I think that Dean Sharpe, with her long career in business education as a faculty member and an administrator, and I, with my Wall Street background, complement each other well. Our collaborative approach and our passion for being advocates and ambassadors for Tobin College have helped us build an effective team.

It's been a pleasure working with a dean who has a clear vision for improving the academic quality and reputation of Tobin College, coupled with her passion for engaging alumni. We have enjoyed our interactions with Tobin alumni and the Tobin Board of Advisors and I thank the alumni for their time and generosity.

Q&A WITH LINDA M. SAMA, Ph.D.,
ASSOCIATE DEAN OF GLOBAL INITIATIVES AND PROFESSOR AND JOSEPH F. ADAMS CHAIR OF MANAGEMENT

Would you share with us the history of GLOBE?

Inspired by Muhammad Yunus, father of modern microfinance, I founded GLOBE (Global Loan Opportunities for Budding Entrepreneurs) in the Spring of 2009. It is an experiential academic program running every semester that provides microloans, sourced through donations, to entrepreneurs living in poverty around the world. Since its inception, more than 250 loans have been offered to borrowers in seven countries on three continents, with the help of our field partners, the Daughters of Charity. The beauty of GLOBE is that it is completely student-managed. Student managers promote the program, raise funds for loans, measure our impact, work with borrowers to ensure success, and vet all incoming loan applications. Loan recommendations are approved by our governing body, the GLOBE Steering Committee. With 530 GLOBE graduates, the program continues to educate students about the positive role that business can play in society, and the power they have to make meaningful change "one loan at a time."

This year Tobin sent more than 100 students abroad. Can you discuss the growth of our Global Destination Courses (GDCs)?

In 2011, in response to a growing demand among our students for an international experience that would not necessarily require spending a full semester abroad, we launched the GDC program. For many of our students who work or have internships, these opportunities for short-term travel are a perfect fit. Nearly 800 undergraduate and graduate students have taken advantage of this opportunity since the program's inception. The destination for travel is designed to reflect the content of the academic course in which it is embedded. We started with one course to one destination and have grown the program to include travel to as many as 15 different countries over the last 12 years, with courses representing five different departments. Growth in the program has been stimulated by the fact that many of the GDC travel components are subsidized by donors or Dean Scholarships.

What does the membership of Tobin College in PRME mean for the mission of St. John's?

Tobin became a signatory to the Principles for Responsible Management Education (PRME) in 2010, resolving to adhere to the organization's six principles of Purpose, Values, Method, Research, Partnership, and Dialogue. PRME's recent focus has been to uphold the priorities of the UN Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), which complement the PRME Principles. As a result of the research initiatives of our faculty that align with the SDGs, we were designated as a PRME

Champion School for the 2018–2019 cycle, joining a select group of 38 Champion institutions from 20 countries around the world. Both the PRME principles and the SDGs are strongly aligned with the mission of St. John's as they reflect St Vincent de Paul's profound concern with positive change in the world, which he brought to his role as a missionary and his work as an entrepreneur.

Tell us about the International Vincentian Business Ethics Conference (IVBEC) that Tobin cosponsors with other institutions.

We are proud to be part of a collective of Vincentian universities that rotate hosting the annual IVBEC, now celebrating its 30th year! Each conference is centered around a unique business ethics theme; for example, in 2018, the theme was People, Planet, Progress: Business Ethics for a Global Society, with a focus on the Sustainable Development Goals. The event attracts academics hailing from as many as 25 countries and more than 80 universities worldwide to share their related research. We invite keynote speakers from industry, government, and universities to share their research relating to Vincentian values.

What are your fondest memories your time at St. John's University?

Without a doubt, my fondest memories of St. John's revolve around time spent with students in both GLOBE and our Executive-in-Residence Program (EIRP). It has been my distinct privilege to work with many highly motivated undergraduates and these unique experiences with my students lead me to reflect on the value of experiential learning. There is a quote I often share with my students to encourage them on their path to success. It is from one of my favorite poets, Maya Angelou, and reads: "I've learned that you shouldn't go through life with a catcher's mitt on both hands; you need to be able to throw something back." While it is meant to remind students that giving back is an important element of a meaningful career, it also embodies a tenet of my teaching philosophy, which is to dare to be bold in the classroom, and to give back to students and to society with my heart, energy, and mind.

INTERVIEW WITH MACIEK NOWAK, PH.D.
NEW DEAN OF THE PETER J. TOBIN COLLEGE OF BUSINESS

ST. JOHN'S
UNIVERSITY

THE PETER J. TOBIN
COLLEGE OF BUSINESS

With the support of Rev. Brian J. Shanley, O.P., President of St. John's University, Maciek Nowak, Ph.D., was appointed Dean of The Peter J. Tobin College of Business and the Joseph H. and Maria C. Schwartz Distinguished Chair, effective June 1, 2023.

Dr. Nowak was the Senior Associate Vice President for Strategic Planning and Implementation at Loyola University Chicago, where he was a member of the President's Cabinet. He previously served in a wide variety of leadership roles at Loyola's Quinlan School of Business, including Interim Dean, Associate Dean of Faculty and Research, and Department Chair.

An accomplished scholar of supply chain management with an extensive record of publications in top business journals, Dr. Nowak earned his Ph.D. in Industrial and Systems Engineering from the Georgia Institute of Technology and his bachelor's degree and two master's degrees in engineering from the University of Michigan.

Through his research, Dr. Nowak has worked with Federal Express, the United Parcel Service, the Polish Post Office, The Home Depot, and Bosch. He has also received grants for research from the US Small Business Administration, the US Department of Transportation Federal Highway Administration, the US Department of Transportation, and the US State Department.

Dr. Nowak joined the business faculty at Loyola in 2008. He has also served as a visiting scholar at Northwestern University and the University of Tunis El Manar, a visiting faculty member at Creighton University, and a Fulbright Scholar at the SGH Warsaw School of Economics.

What about The Peter J. Tobin College of Business attracted you to this role?

After 15 years at a Jesuit institution, I couldn't imagine working at a school that doesn't have a mission-oriented focus. As I met with St. John's faculty, staff, and students, I was impressed with how everyone spoke of their excitement and optimism about the leadership of the leadership of Rev. Brian J. Shanley, O.P., President, and Simon G. Moller, Ph.D., Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs.. It became clear to me that this is an exciting time to join the Tobin family. Tobin has risen in academic rankings and reputation under Dean Sharpe and I am excited to have the opportunity to continue to build on this strong foundation.

Which of your experiences have most prepared you for this new leadership role?

As interim dean at the Quinlan School of Business, I was focused on our mission of building business for the betterment of society, educating future leaders who are interested in both profit and purpose. This included a major initiative to work with minority-owned businesses in the Chicagoland area, the development of a workshop to draw more underrepresented minority students to careers in academia, and collaborating closely with our School of Environmental Sustainability. These initiatives closely coincide with both Tobin and St. John's mission. Serving on the President's cabinet in my current role allowed me to see how all schools and units operated together, providing insight into interdisciplinary opportunities and challenges. It is evident the deans at St. John's are collaborative, and I look forward to working closely with them on initiatives that bridge the various academic units.

What existing programs will you expand on and what new programs are you eager to launch?

The Thomas J. Cox, Jr. Honors Program brings to Tobin some of the most incredible students I have had the pleasure to meet. I have been impressed by the engagement and professionalism of those students. I would like to continue to develop that program and see how it can further contribute to Tobin's burgeoning reputation. Along those lines, Dean Sharpe's efforts to draw more national attention to Tobin is reflected in the growth in rankings. I hope to continue that path, further bringing into prominence the incredible things happening at Tobin.

Prior to launching any new programs, I'd like to take some time to learn about Tobin and get to know more about its strengths and how those can be best utilized to benefit Tobin's various constituents. There are many promising opportunities at Tobin; I am excited to guide us as we determine which of those to focus on first.
