

ST. JOHN'S
UNIVERSITY

THE SCHOOL OF EDUCATION

Ed.D. in Educational Administration and Supervision

Program Description

The doctoral degree in Educational Administration and Supervision is an opportunity for educational leaders to enhance their knowledge and skills in research and current trends in education, with a view to becoming administrative and policy leaders in the field of education. Highly qualified educational leaders who demonstrate a desire to further their professional and scholarly knowledge—and who possess the dedication and commitment required for doctoral study—are selected for this program in K-12 and higher education institutions.

Admission requirements include a minimum 3.2 graduate GPA and satisfactory scores on the GRE verbal and quantitative sections.

The program consists of a minimum of 60 credits beyond an initial master's degree in educational leadership or a closely related field. Upon admission, the candidate is assigned a faculty academic advisor who assists in developing a course plan in accordance with the program requirements.

Candidates typically attend part time (two courses per semester) for the majority of their program. Courses are offered on the Queens campus (weekday evenings) and at the Long Island location, and Staten Island, and Manhattan campuses (weekday evenings or weekend format). A limited number of doctoral fellowships are available each year for candidates pursuing full-time study. After completing their course work, candidates conduct doctoral dissertation research with the mentorship of a faculty advisor.

Graduate programs are registered with the New York State Department of Education to be offered on the Queens and Staten Island campuses, as well as via Online Learning. Additionally, selected courses leading to many of our degree programs (but not entire degrees) are offered at our Long Island location and Manhattan campus. Students interested in taking courses offered at either of these sites are advised that at least one course in their program must be taken on the Queens campus in compliance with New York State regulations.

Benefits of Program

The doctoral degree in Educational Administration and Supervision provides a means for candidates for both K-12 and higher education institutions to participate at the state and national levels in conducting research and impacting educational policy and practice through engagement in professional organizations and agencies.

List of Career Possibilities

Our program graduates have advanced in leadership roles in their respective schools, districts, colleges, and universities. They are also actively engaged in preparing future teachers, school leaders, and college administrators by teaching at colleges and universities, or through administrative positions in governmental agencies or research organizations that play a role in education.

Partnerships

The Department of Administrative and Instructional Leadership has partnerships with educational agencies in the metropolitan area, including the Nassau County BOCES, Eastern Suffolk BOCES, Stony Brook University, and the New York City schools. Collaborative ventures with educational institutions in Korea and Italy have also been established.

What makes our program unique? Why come here?

The doctoral program at St. John's University has an outstanding reputation for quality and completion. Faculty advisors work closely with candidates to identify research topics pertinent to the field of education and relevant to their own work contexts. The partnerships listed above provide a unique opportunity to examine issues in education with data that reflect the current challenges in the local area, region, or state.

Internships/Placement

University Career Services provides assistance to candidates as they seek to identify opportunities for advancement.

Campuses and Locations

Queens, Staten Island, Long Island, and Manhattan

Contact

Queens

Sandra Altman, M.A.
Associate Director of Graduate Admission
The School of Education
718-990-3125
altmans@stjohns.edu

Long Island Graduate Center

Robert M. Mangione, Ed.D.
Director, Long Island Graduate Center
Assistant Professor
The School of Education
718-990-7782
mangior1@stjohns.edu