Spring 2021

A newsletter for our St. John's University's Employer Partners

Greetings,

Entry level recruiting today looks very different than it did Pre-Covid-19. Accelerated by the pandemic and the movement for racial justice, changes that were expected to take years are happening instead in months. We saw the pandemic accelerate virtual hiring and the role that recruiters will play in DE&I.

The St. John's University Career Services team wants to thank all our employer partners that navigated this past year with us. Whether it was participating in one of our 9 career fairs, 100+ virtual events, virtual On-Campus Recruiting, or our Equity & Inclusion in the Workplace Consortium program, your commitment to our students is valued and appreciated.

St. John's University plans to have its students back on campus in the fall for in-person instruction. Covid vaccines are required for all students taking classes on campus. Although our large signature events, such as career fairs and industry networking events will primarily be virtual this fall, we are excited to bring back some smaller in-person events such as info sessions, student organization classroom presentations, tabling and meet and greet events (following CDC and city/state guidelines).

We understand that for some of our employer partners, virtual recruiting is a better option and we want to be as versatile as possible. As you are planning your recruiting season, be it in-person, virtual, or a hybrid model, please do not hesitate to reach out to us. We look forward to working together to customize a recruiting strategy that works for you! Please share your plans and feedback with us in our employer survey at the end of this newsletter.

We would appreciate your participation in a quick survey so that we may better understand and serve your needs as a valued employer of our students and graduates. Completing this survey should take between 5 and 7 minutes, and we will keep your data confidential. Please click here to take our survey.

I wish you all a good summer and hope to see you on campus in the fall.

Sincerely,
Donna Haynes
Senior Director of Employer Relations
