As a current St. John's University Graduate Student, I have learned just as much through my various internship and professional experiences as I have in the classroom. The value that comes from immersing oneself fully into the professional world through Internships, Networking Events, Career Fairs, and more is absolutely unparalleled and has helped shape me, and other STJ students, into confident working professionals!

As we kick off our Spring Semester, St. Johns University Career Services would like to thank you for all of your engagement throughout the year and for the amazing professional opportunities offered to our students!

NYC Pay Transparency Human Rights Law

The New York City Commission on Human Rights recently passed the NYC Human Rights Law, with a provision that requires salary transparency on all job advertisements.

Starting November 1, 2022, employers advertising jobs in New York City must include a good faith salary range for every job, promotion, and transfer opportunity advertised.

Recruitment Trends

Employers plan to hire 14.7% more new graduates from the Class of 2023 than they did in 2022, according to NACE's Job Outlook 2023 report.

Pent up demand, among other factors, have helped trigger a sharp increase in hiring projections as we come out of the pandemic, to the benefit of recent and upcoming graduates. This current projected increase is more in line with what we saw before the pandemic.

Half of responding employers to NACE's job report plan to increase hiring while less than 6% plan to cut back.
