

SUCCESS STORIES

TREVOR FARLAND '17C

The recipient of multiple prestigious awards, Trevor Farland '17C has enhanced his Government and Politics undergraduate and graduate education in St. John's College through the Jeannette K. Watson Undergraduate Fellowship and the Native American Congressional Internship Program by the Morris K. Udall and Stewart L. Udall Foundation.

Most recently, he has been chosen as an American Political Science Association (APSA) Minority Fellow for 2018–19. The APSA Minority Fellowship Program will support Mr. Farland's goal to complete a doctoral degree in political science and use his research to advocate on behalf of indigenous peoples within government systems.

FLOR D'LUNA (ARELLANO) BLUM '09C, '10G, '15G

The first-ever graduate of the Master of Arts degree program in Public History, Flor D'Luna (Arellano) Blum '09C, '10G, '15G, is now a park ranger in the National Park Service stationed at the Statue of Liberty. She gained her current position by interning with the park service while a graduate student at St. John's.

"Public History is such an up and coming field, and where I work is a great example of that," said Ms. Blum. "You have to make history accessible. I know a lot of people who think you can only teach with a history degree, and I do teach, but my classroom is an island."

ANTHONY TEDALDI '10C, '14G

After earning a Master of Science degree in Chemistry and receiving a prestigious Woodrow Wilson Teaching Fellowship in 2014, Anthony Tedaldi '10C, '14G went on to distinguish himself once again as a rising leader in education: he was chosen by the Knowles Science Teaching Foundation to join the 2016 cohort of teaching fellows. Mr. Tedaldi was among 33 early-career math and science teachers chosen from thousands of other applicants.

ST. JOHN'S COLLEGE OF LIBERAL ARTS AND SCIENCES
Graduate Degree Programs

Educators and researchers, clinicians and business executives—graduate students from around the world come to St. John’s College of Liberal Arts and Sciences for the knowledge and skills to excel in their careers or launch entirely new ones.

Founded in 1870, St. John’s College is the oldest unit of St. John’s University, one of America’s premier Catholic institutions of higher education. Students choose from more than 30 graduate programs leading to master’s and doctoral degrees, as well as advanced certificates. Flexible schedules, including evening classes and online options, accommodate busy adults.

Faculty are world-class scholars and teachers. With their guidance, graduate students earn prestigious awards and fellowships. Students also hone their skills and obtain certification in their fields by working in the College’s academic and clinical centers. Above all, St. John’s College graduate students are part of a supportive, close-knit, scholarly community enlivened by lectures, campus organizations and societies, as well as opportunities to study overseas.

SPECIAL OPPORTUNITIES

The annual Academic Lecture Series brings leading scholars, artists, authors, and public figures to campus. They address topics relevant to the University’s mission in the fields of science, health care, religion, education, media, technology, politics, business, culture, and the arts.

Graduate students in the clinical fields gain hands-on experience in St. John’s College’s professional treatment facilities. Students serve under faculty supervision in St. John’s respected Speech and Hearing Center, a state-of-the-art facility for the diagnosis and treatment of speech, language, and hearing disorders. The University’s Center for Psychological Services also addresses community needs while providing training opportunities for graduate students in St. John’s College’s clinical and school psychology programs.

In addition to many online courses, graduate study in St. John’s College includes opportunities to study abroad at St. John’s Rome, Italy, campus and Paris, France, location. Also, Speech-Language Pathology students may participate in academic-service learning in Guatemala.

CAREER OUTCOMES

Through strong faculty and program associations, students enjoy a wide variety of internship and job placement opportunities. Though many working adults enroll to advance in their current fields, others use their training to launch new careers. The graduate degree programs in St. John’s College help you advance in your current career or embark on an exciting new one.
